4. *The objects offered for sale at the auction are identified and described, including specification of the starting price in the auction catalogue, which constitutes an annex and integral part of this auction announcement. The bidder takes note and agrees that the items offered for sale at the auction may be subject to limitations resulting from legal regulations, especially they may be proclaimed (or proposed to be proclaimed) as a cultural monument within the meaning of Act No. 20/1987 Sb., on State monument care (such items are marked as "monuments" or with the letter "P" in the catalogue), they may be subject to the limitations within the meaning of Act No. 71/1994 Coll., on the sale and export of objects of cultural value, or to similar limitations. The data about the items included in the auction and about the rights and obligations connected with the offered items are indicative only and the Auction House is not responsible and does not guarantee for their correctness and completeness. All items included in the auction are realised irrespective of defects and shortcomings or incorrect description. If the description of the offered object does not contain a certain piece of information, it does not mean that the concerned item is free of defects or shortcomings. The damage corresponding to normal wear and tear of the offered items with respect to their age or character is in principle not mentioned in the catalogue. Participants had an opportunity before the auction to make themselves personally familiar with the condition of each item offered for sale at the auction and it is solely up to them to consider whether the concerned item corresponds to the description and to decide whether to bid on it or not. All data and all statements mentioned in the catalogue concerning the authorship, attributed features, authenticity, quality, origin, date, age, provenience, condition or appraisal value, for which the item may be won, express the opinion held by the Auction House only. The Auction House reserves the right to consult with any experts or official authorities at the sole discretion of the Auction House. The Auction House does not provide any guarantee for the won items; all and any guarantees are thereby ruled out. The items offered for sale at the auction are artworks and all defects they may have are reflected in the starting or hammer price, which is what the winning bidder expressly agrees to and affirms by making the bid to which the hammering is subsequently awarded. Owing to the character and nature of the offered items, the winning bidder, by making the bid to which the hammering is subsequently awarded, waives his or her rights from defects of the won item, including the rights within the meaning of Section 1916 of Act No. 89/2012 Coll., Civil Code.
